

Tips for writing to your insurance company

Your doctor may be working with your insurance company on your behalf to help with coverage. Writing a letter yourself can also help.

If your doctor has suggested that you write a letter to your insurance company for SCEMBLIX® (asciminib) tablets, use this checklist to make sure you're providing the necessary information:

Include important details about yourself: name, insurance membership/policy number, date of birth, and, if appropriate, the denial reference number and the date of denial

Close the letter with a summary of the recommendation from your doctor and provide their contact information (eg, phone number or email address), should any additional information be required

Explain your request—be sure you have read the plan's coverage policy or denial letter, and refer to those specifics

If you are writing to your insurance company regarding your co-pay for SCEMBLIX, be sure to include any important information about your financial situation

State your diagnosis and describe your personal experience(s) with your condition

Mention any past medications you have tried and your experience with them
