What if I don't have insurance?

Novartis Patient Assistance Foundation, Inc. (NPAF) is an independent, 501(c)(3) non-profit entity that provides certain medications at no cost to eligible patients who cannot afford the cost of their Novartis medication, are uninsured or have government insurance, and meet income guidelines and other eligibility criteria. NPAF does not provide product to individuals having insurance associated with any type of alternative funding program that conditions, restricts, or adjusts coverage based on application to NPAF or any other free goods program. Other terms and conditions may apply. Please visit www.PAP.Novartis.com for more information.

Making sense of insurance terms

Trying to understand insurance terms can feel like learning a different language. Read on for a breakdown of common terms that may come up.

Here's the good news. Novartis Patient Support provides a Co-Pay Plus offer for KISQALI, if you're privately insured. It can help with some of those out-of-pocket costs.

What is an out-of-pocket cost?

These are health care expenses you're responsible for paying. They're not reimbursed by your insurance provider.

Deductible: what you pay for a prescription before your health plan starts to pay for its part of the cost.

Say you have a $1,000 deductible and a medical bill for $2,000

You'll pay $1,000 and hit your deductible

Your health plan will cover the rest of the medical bill, other than any copayment for which you are responsible

Co-pay/Co-insurance: what you pay for a prescription and/or medical service. Often you'll have a co-pay, which is a fixed amount. Or you might have co-insurance, which will be a percentage of your cost.

Say you have medication that costs $100

You'll pay $20

Your health plan covers the rest^s

^sYour actual coverage will depend on your type of insurance and health plan.

Co-pay offer: financial support from your medication's manufacturer for privately insured individuals. It aims to reduce out-of-pocket costs.
